More on the ATHALIA Datestamp
(Article by Johan Bezuidenhout : The SA Philatelist dd. August, 2016)

With reference to the article by Johan Bezuidenhout in the SAP, August 2016, regarding his 2 postal cancellations of ATHALIA. I append herewith 2 images of a post card, written by a C.J.Kuhn, then the owner of the farm Athalia, and addressed to Rev. Chr. Scriba in Germany. It bears the cancellation of the Athalia postal agency, dd 25.04.1910, with Piet Retief transit cancellation of the same date. The text on the reverse is written in the old German sütterlin script, which I can read and write.

Most of the farm has for generations been owned by the Kuhn family.

I contacted the present owner (84 years old), as well as three other old timers who lived in that area, with the hope of obtaining more information about the Athalia postal agency. All of them are aware that the agency was accommodated in a trading store on the farm (long before their time) and that it had been closed down before 1920. Interestingly, all of them deny that the postal agency continued on Athalia under the name De Grens. They all think that the agency was subsequently accommodated at or near the border post, east of the farm Athalia, and now called Bothashoop/Gege border post. That place was, and still is, commonly called Die Grens. More research to be done!

2019 COMMONWEALTH & BRITISH EMPIRE STAMPS 1840-1970

This Stanley Gibbons comprehensive catalogue covers Great Britain, Commonwealth and Empire countries 1840-1970. Invaluable six-page article on stamp condition, and a helpful guide to valuing stamps on commercial cover up to 1945. There are some substantial rises in Australian States and further increases in India and States. Most areas and periods up to the 1940s see selected increases and a number of previously unpriced items have now been given a value. Errors and many plate flaws and watermark varieties are also generally marked up.

Forged SPECIMEN Overprints on Cape of Good Hope Revenues
Dr Ian Matheson RDPSA, Philatelic Society of Johannesburg

Introduction
Regular messages have been disseminated recently by the Expert Committee of South Africa, and principally from Chairman Michael Wigmore RDPSA, warning collectors of the ever-increasing prevalence of fakes being offered in internet auction sales. Organisations such as eBay and Delcampe try to provide some security to the buyer, but there is a limit to what they can do. The old adage ‘Caveat Emptor’ rings true.

The Scam
In 2010-2012 a fraudulent operation was conducted by overprinting many revenue stamps of the Cape of Good Hope with a red SPECIMEN overprint. As usual, hindsight proves to be an exact science. The earliest item I have heard of was a Bill of Lading of 1865, and the dates extend well into the interprovincial period - almost half a century with the same mark; most unlikely! Another example is a document with two stamps applied one above the other, yet only the top stamp was overprinted SPECIMEN. This was also a red light. Most of the examples are on single stamps, but a depressing number also occur on documents, several of them exceptional historical documents that have now been sullied. It also seems amazing that none of these overprints have now been sullied. It is important that this scam is stopped before further damage is done. We know that misunderstandings like this have an unfortunate habit of becoming ‘facts’ when they are repeated often enough.

The Evidence
Maybe the observations listed above should have been enough to bring this matter to a speedy conclusion, but the vendor was adept at spinning a long and detailed yarn of the provenance of these issues that allowed the case to draw out. However, I was not comfortable with the whole scenario and made copies of all the items I had bought plus a few that were on sale at that moment. I then sent these copies to the Expert Committee of the Philatelic Federation (via chairman Michael Wigmore RDPSA) for an opinion. Michael did a most comprehensive job scanning records and the internet and was able to find a number of old illustrations of the offending items without the overprint, thus proving comprehensively that the items were recent creations and definitely not genuine.

The Follow-up and the ‘Story’
I contacted the vendor resulting in a lengthy and most unsatisfactory correspondence, but he did agree to refund me in full for my purchases. I followed up with eBay and the vendor’s two accounts were closed. Furthermore I received an assurance from the vendor that they had traced all the buyers and had ensured that each was given a full refund. I have never seen any such item on the market since and hoped that the problem had been nipped in the bid. I was asked (not by the vendor, I stress) to hold off on my story at the time because of matters concerning a very senior philatelist, which are now no longer relevant. I thought that the issue was consigned to history. However there have been a few unfortunate corollaries.

In discussions with another South African dealer I learned that he had also purchased a few of the duds, and he had certainly not been contacted and offered a refund. In 2012 the Revenue Society in UK published a splendid article by Cape specialist Oscar van der Vliet entitled Aspects of Cape of Good Hope Revenue Stamps. On pages 3 and 7 he illustrated examples of the SPECIMEN overprints with the story that I had been given. Oscar wrote “I have a group of about twenty examples, including multiple values on piece”. It was clear that all buyers had not been contacted and refunded. In December 2014 John Fletcher published volume 3 of his books on Cape of Good Hope Revenues. On page 102 we again see illustrations of the offending overprints with no indication that they were fakes.

It is important that this scam is stopped before further damage is done. We know that misunderstandings like this have an unfortunate habit of becoming ‘facts’ when they are repeated often enough.

The ‘story’ given by the vendor, who was based in Israel, reads “The Cape Budget Blue Book specifically states that all new series of revenue and postage stamps are to be handstamped ‘SPECIMEN’ for each denomination and a page of each kept”. He further wrote that it was not surprising how they only appeared on the market in 2010 -2012. When I confronted him with the evidence of wrongdoing I received an elaboration of the story. He maintained that all stamps sold prior to 15 April 2012 were genuine, but that an assistant of his father had confessed to producing the forgeries after that date and putting them on sale. He claimed to have a “sworn and notarized statement” to that effect. This is patent rubbish as stamps sold in 2011 were also fakes.

Conclusion
The only conclusion that I can reach is that ALL of the red SPECIMEN overprints on CoGH revenues are fakes propagated from a single source and many collectors have been duped.

National Stamp Exhibition 2018
Centurion - 17 to 20 October 2018
Venue address: 87 Jim Van der Merwe Street, Clubview Centurion 0157

Our venue: www.kleinkaap.co.za in Centurion

by André du Plessis

It is the organising committee’s sincere hope to see as many philatelic friends as possible and welcome you to STAMPSHOW 2018 at Kleinkaap Boutique Hotel in Centurion.

With so many readers not receiving their copies of the last issue of this magazine, we are relying on societies to spread the word and welcome friends and family to STAMPSHOW 2018 at a venue that makes the most of the glorious Pretoria weather. It offers luscious gardens and a warm, welcoming atmosphere - so take your time and make the most of your visit to this year’s philatelic event.

The official catalogue for this year’s National will be found with this October issue and contains the information explaining how the Pretoria Philatelic Society, established in 1898, held its first Stampshow in 1903 and this year marks its 20th.

This year the exhibition is hosted outside of Pretoria city limits in Centurion, now part of the City of Tshwane Metropolitan Municipality that included all of Pretoria.

The Union buildings continue to be the logo of choice to honour the long history of the Pretoria Philatelic Society and the Afrikaans Filateliëvereniging van Pretoria.

Be sure to take up the offer to have your purchased exhibition envelopes cancelled by the two cancellers available for the duration of the show. One is the STAMPSHOW 2018 logo with dates 17 to 20 October 2018 and marked Pretoria. The other is a Centurion circular datestamp.

There are 10 dealers with SAPDA credentials that have much to offer and a plethora of philatelic material prepared for the auction on Saturday, 20 October.

The Philatelic Federation of South Africa (PFSA) has supported three National Stamp Exhibitions this year; ‘Stampshow 2018’, the ‘South African Virtual Philatelic Exhibition 2018’ in Bloemfontein and the ‘Junior National Stampshow’ (JUNASS) in Cape Town.

This year is also the 90th anniversary of PFSA and its 80th Congress which is held on Friday 19 October 2018 at this Kleinkaap venue. In the early years, Congress was not held annually and in the 1940s it was disrupted by the second World War.

The beautiful shady gardens afford specialist societies the opportunity to hold their meetings outdoors, to make the most of our early Highveld summer weather. As always, the societies welcome visitors to attend and participate in their meetings.

Jury members, under chairmanship of Emil Minnaar, will also be happy to discuss aspects of the material on show.

Without all this support, a successful exhibition is just not possible!

The ABC of stamps
by David Wigston, East Rand Philatelic Society

Bantams
A nickname given to the smaller sized stamps issued by South Africa during WWII to conserve paper. Each value was issued on different dates over the period 1942 to 1944 which means that there cannot be a First Day Cover with all eight issues. The purpose of the stamps was to highlight the various branches of the Union Defence Force. The portraits used on the 1½d, 1d and 2d stamps were taken from portraits by Neville Lewis, the first South African to be appointed as a war artist. The designs are similar to those on the large war issue. Despite the fact that these stamps were demonetised when South Africa became a Republic in 1961, they were still seen in use in the 1970s. Bantams need to be collected either in pairs or triplets, as illustrated on the right.

Booklets
A folder (Fig.1) or small book, issued by the post office, containing anywhere between four and 20 stamps. A complete page of stamps taken from a booklet is known as a pane (Fig.2). A booklet can contain a single pane or, in the case of a prestige booklet (Fig.3), several panes. The pane(s) are held in the cover by stitches (the holes made by the stitches) can be seen on the left in Fig.4, glue or staples or simply stuck to the cover by the edge of the pane. In the case of self-adhesive stamps, the backing paper often doubles as the booklet cover. The stamps are usually imperforate on one or more sides having been cut from a much larger sheet (Fig.2). Early booklets usually carried advertising to fill empty spaces in a pane. The late 1960s saw the introduction of pictorial covers which helped to increase the popularity of collecting stamp booklets (Fig.5a&b). The first booklet was issued by Luxembourg in 1895, followed by the US in 1902 and the UK in 1908.

Stamps on or off paper?
Many of us remember the days when single stamps or pairs were soaked off paper to mount in an album. Stamp collecting was at its heyday. How I pine to have the envelopes with stamps from that era intact and complete! There is so much interesting information on covers, as I shall discuss in this column.

Figure 1 shows a registered envelope posted on 13.3.1963 to an address in Nahoon, a suburb in East London. The mail service was efficient, as an annotation, probably by the postman, on 14/3/63 stated ‘Gone / No address’. A three-line cachet ‘GONE AWAY’ in French, English and Afrikaans was applied and probably the same postman indicated that the letter had to be sent to the RLO Cape Town (Returned Letter Office), where it arrived on 30.3.1963 according to the date stamp on the reverse (Putzel 439x). This process was normal as there was no return address given.

Fig.1: Front of registered cover from East London to Nahoon, redirected to RLO Cape Town.

The cover in Fig.2 was mailed in East London on 10.11.1965 to an address in Discovery; Discovery is a suburb between Roodepoort and Florida, which explains its routing from East London to Roodepoort. In red manuscript the address is deleted with a note ‘Gone’ and there is a further illegible annotation dated ‘11/11’. It passed through Roodepoort on 12.11, and Florida and Florida Depot on 13.11. There is an unnamed date stamp of 15.11 and an annotation in blue of 16.11, which appears to be the advice issue date. Date stamps of 16.11 for Florida and Ansfrere are on the back, Ansfrere being a PO which has Florida as its head office. Probably the Ansfrere cachet was deleted. On 2.12 the letter passed through Florida and arrived at the RLO in Cape Town on 8.12.1965. It is strange that the letter was sent to the RLO, as the return address is P.O.Box 15, East London, and the Ansfrere cachet was deleted. On 2.12 the letter passed through Florida and arrived at the RLO in Cape Town on 8.12.1965. It is strange that the letter was sent to the RLO, as the return address is P.O.Box 15, East London.

This cover has provided a lot of fun, and all the answers may not yet be available. It also showed how the postal system was functioning at that time.

Postal officials are only human. The covers in Figs.3 and 4 show that the dates were incorrect, and certified statements in this regard are shown. Fig.3a shows a date stamp of Richards Bay of 25VB92. This does not seem strange on a stamp that was issued in 1981. On the reverse, however, shown in Fig.3b there is an affidavit by a SA Police officer that the item was seen on 21.4.1985, confirmed by the Charge Office Police cachet at Wynberg.

Fig.3: Erroneously dated cancellation and South African Police certification.

Similarly, the cover in Fig.4 shows a date of 1-VI/1987, again nothing unusual, except that the tax indications were cancelled. In this case the Manager or Accountant at the Barclays National Bank in Victoria Road, Salt River, certified that this item was seen on 14.4.1987. Since the date slugs are inserted by hand, it is easy it confuse VI for IV when working with a mirror image. So the cover was evidently mailed on 1.4.1987, and although the new postage rate applied from this date, letters were given grace, as the letter could have been mailed in a street box the previous day. The postal official on duty was probably over-enthusiastic.

I trust that the covers shown in this column will whet the appetite to study covers as the markings are often more interesting than the stamps.

Input by Hugh Amoore RDPSA sincerely acknowledged.

Introduction

Once more a new wave is washing over the philatelic scene. A philatelic historian will be able to demonstrate a number of such waves over the past century or more. We have had times when forgeries were acceptable space-fillers, times when everybody removed stamps from covers as postal history had not yet been born, when mounted mint was as desirable as unmounted, when specimen stamps were second-class citizens in our collections, and even when unfolded gutter pairs were the fashion of the day.

The new fashion is Revenue Stamps. Traditional philately is resisting the trend. Many international shows still do not include a revenue class. This resistance will crumble. A quick perusal of the prices realized for Revenue Stamps in recent sales confirms the trend. The Spink revenue sales from 2013 to date are cases in point. Why?

The reasons are not too hard to find. The field has so much scope for research. Material can be uncovered in so many sources – family and business archives, junk shops, odds and ends on the last pages of old-time collections – and the scope is huge. Face values are often high (although the lowest duties are often the most elusive) which is sexy, and also means that the colours are often the richest most beautiful inks to prevent fraudsters from plying their trade. New discoveries are being uncovered all the time.

I predict that Open and Revenue classes will see the greatest influx of new exhibitors over the next decade or more.

History

At the July meeting of Witwatersrand Philatelic Society I presented the story of the ‘Droit des Pauvres’ and have been asked to share the tale with our readers.

The literal translation of ‘Le Droit des Pauvres’ is ‘The Right of the Poor’. This was a tax on entertainment to provide for the needs of the poorer members of French society. Money spent on theatres, shows, balls, etc. is a discretionary spend. You must have a little more money than you need to survive, if you are going to frequent such types of entertainment, especially at the more salubrious establishments.

The payments were introduced about 1677 when a royalty was levied by Comedie Francaise to pay for Hôpital Général de Paris to occupy the Hôtel de Bourgogne. This was given a legal basis on 25 February 1699, when it was established as one seventh of the total ticket price for theatres, concerts, balls and horse races. The tax was increased to one quarter of the gross revenue in February 1716.

The tax was set at one decime per franc in 1796 and this was confirmed in law by Napoleon in December 1809. An example of the original Gazette introducing the law in 1809 was shown in the exhibit, as was an amendment published in 1816.

From the 1860s the tax was shared by hospitals and charities. From 1875 a receiver was appointed to collect the tax.

Fig.1 shows an 1878 receipt by this receiver for tax collected of Fr 1698.36 for total admission fees of Fr 18682.

In 1909 the Syndicate of Paris Theatre Directors introduced a set of adhesive stamps to indicate collection of the Droit des Pauvres tax. The local surtax payable was 10%, applied on top of the normal admission fee. Two different dies were employed, each being used for different duties. They were used simultaneously. The exhibit included plate proofs of each value and also issued stamps (Fig.2). A number of tickets were displayed where the stamps had been affixed (Fig.3).

Some establishments used tickets pre-printed with the ‘revenue stamp’ (Fig.4) in a similar manner to the Orange Free State Entertainments Tax stamps used between the world wars.
As ticket prices increased over the years, it became impractical to use stamps of the required values, so stamps with blank duty plates were introduced and the tax was inserted in manuscript (Fig.5).

The use of stamps was discontinued after a while and theatres issued tickets preprinted either with the legend ‘Droit des Pauvres compris’ (Fig.6) or ‘Droit des Pauvres et Taxes compris’ (Fig.7) to indicate that either the Droit tax alone or Droit tax plus other local taxes had been collected, and the ticket price was all-inclusive. Figure 8 shows a ticket used after Droit stamps had been discontinued and shows use of a normal revenue (‘Quittances’ = Receipt) stamp denoting tax payment. Fig.9 shows a receipt from La Rochelle (1938) from the local municipal tax collector.

France was not the only country to issue stamps for the ‘Droit des Pauvres’. French Morocco also issued stamps for the tax from 1920. Several sheets of these stamps were displayed. Fig.10 shows a 10c duty with a cinema cancellation. Fig.11 shows a 50c duty demonstrating a paper fold error. Fig.12 shows an issued stamp of the 5c control stamp, and Fig.13 shows a curious se-tenant pair of 5c and 25c control stamps. Very few such pairs are recorded and it is speculated that smaller venues may have been able to buy mixed sheets (like the GB mixed booklets and the RSA Readers Digest sheets!) so that they could make up small values without having to buy complete sheets of each duty. The Droit des Pauvres ended during World War II (31 December 1941 in France), but taxation on entertainment continued as a single tax with variable rates and different beneficiaries.
OBITUARY

JOHN HORNER

I got to know John when he and his family moved to Kimberley in the mid-1980s. It was not long before he joined the Kimberley Philatelic Society, serving on its committee for many years. He served as secretary but even assumed the Chairman’s duties when this position was vacant for various reasons.

He was a keen collector of Botswana and the postmarks and postal slogans of South Africa. Even though his interests later changed to thematics he still kept up with postmark collecting and postal history. His interest in thematics began when he and his wife Judy, started collecting stamps featuring heraldry, African tribes and masks. He joined Thematics SA when this society at local venues such as the William Humphreys Art Gallery in Kimberley. He also belonged to the Royal Stamp Circle, serving on the committee as Publicity Officer from 2005 until his passing. He had an active role in the Thematics SA committee as Publicity Officer, especially when the Thematics SA society was started and also served on their committee, especially when he retired to Cape Town.

Although he did not exhibit nationally, John played an integral role in Kimberley by helping to organise promotional exhibitions for the society at local venues such as the Public Library and the McGregor Museum. He was also involved in the organising of the ABO Phil Exhibition in 1999 which was held at the William Humphreys Art Gallery in Kimberley. He also made up small exhibits for a number of thematics at the Prethema shows in Pretoria.

When John retired from De Beers, he and Judy moved to Cape Town where he joined the Pinelands Stamp Circle, serving on the committee as Publicity Officer from 2005 until his passing. He also belonged to the Royal. John was an active member at Pinelands, participating in club exhibitions and competitions and, together with Judy, putting up a number of displays in the Pinelands Library during the October stamp month. John will be greatly missed by all his stamp collecting friends in the Kimberley Philatelic Society and Pinelands Stamp Circle.

REVENUES

Embosed and Impressed
REVENUE STAMPS OF THE UNION OF SOUTH AFRICA
by Dr Gerhard Kamffer RDPSA, Pretoria Philatelic Society

Introduction and background
The collecting of embossed or impressed revenue stamps of the Union is one of the neglected fields of revenue stamp collecting. This is a fascinating element that should be included in any revenue collection. This article is a first attempt to identify the various types of embossed or impressed revenue stamps.

The use of embossed or impressed revenue stamps was introduced long before postage stamps. As Clive Ackerman stated in his book Collecting and Displaying Revenue Stamps the first ever revenue stamp printed on a document was in Spain in 1637. The first revenue stamps used in the United Kingdom were impressed duty stamps after the introduction of the Stamp Duty Act in 1694. The use of embossed revenue stamps with the date indicated on the stamp was also introduced at a very early stage in the UK (Fig.1). These British embossed and printed stamps for cheques and other types of documents also had the feature where the date of embossing or printing was indicated on the stamp (Figs.2 and 3).

Embossed revenue stamps were also used in the Cape of Good Hope, Natal, Transvaal and the Orange Free State. The first issue for the Cape, intended officially as adhesives, were the 1864 issues. Embossed revenue stamps were used in Natal from circa 1855. In the Orange Free State embossed revenue stamps were issued in 1856 (Fig.4). Alan Drysdall in his book Transvaal Revenue and Telegraph

The use of embossed or impressed type revenue stamps in terms of the Stamp Duties and Fees Act of 1911
In preparation for Unification in 1910 the Distributor of Stamps, L.S. Wilkinson, wrote a letter to the Secretary of Treasury on 26 November 1909 regarding the purchasing of a multiple stamping machine. He stated the following: “One machine of the multiple type is sufficient to meet our requirements. On the subject of dies, I think that a new set should accompany the multiple machine. By omitting the word ‘Transvaal’ which appears in the dies we have at present, the new ones would serve our purpose now and be available under Union. A similar die to the one I suggest is used at Somerset House. The new die should bear a crown, the value of the impression and the usual scroll work and plug holes” (Fig.5).

Stamps indicated that a De La Rue essay for the One Penny revenue stamp of the upright design that was intended to be embossed on cheques, was designed in November 1900.

Fig.1: British type embossed revenue stamp with handstamp ‘specimen’ dated: 22.11. (18)86.

Embossed revenue stamps were also used in the Cape of Good Hope, Natal, Transvaal and the Orange Free State. The first issue for the Cape, intended officially as adhesives, were the 1864 issues. Embossed revenue stamps were issued as adhesives in Natal from circa 1855. In the Orange Free State embossed revenue stamps were issued in 1856 (Fig.4). Alan Drysdall in his book Transvaal Revenue and Telegraph the Act: Provided that: a) in the case of any instrument liable to a duty of one penny, a postage stamp may be used for denoting of the duty; b) payment of duty may be denoted by means of impressed stamps in the following classes of instruments , that is to say.: cheques, bills of exchange liable to a fixed rate of duty, proxies, receipts, and any other instrument to which the Minister of Finance may from time to time by notice in the Gazette apply this proviso.” (Figs.6, 7,8,9).

The machine that was embossing the cheque stamps was referred to by De La Rue as a ‘power cameo machine’. Later on 23 June 1930, it was announced that the embossing of revenue stamps on cheque forms etc. in the various Provinces of the Union will be performed at the following places:

- Cape - Officer in charge, Government Printing and Stationery Department, Good Hope Hall, Cape Town.
- Natal - Receiver of Revenue, Durban.
- Orange Free State - Receiver of Revenue, Bloemfontein.
- Transvaal - Government Printer, Koch Street, Pretoria.

It was also stated that material for embossing should be forwarded to the embossing centre most accessible by rail or post regardless of provincial boundaries, provided that in the case of banking institutions with branches warrants to be obtained from the Receiver of Revenue by consignors covering transportation charges for the conveyance of forms by rail to the stamping centre, and parcels of forms not exceeding 11 lbs. in weight may be superscribed ‘O.H.M.S.’ and sent through the post free of charge.

Round and oval types of embossed and imprinted revenue stamps

Six types of embossed or imprinted round and oval designs were also used in the Union period on various types of documents. A selection of types are described and illustrated:

- Round design (30mm) where the Crown is flanked by an ornament. A round design was used for some of the Union embossed revenue stamps as was the case in the Transvaal Colony. Drysdall in his book: Transvaal Revenue and Telegraph stamps described a similar design for some of the Transvaal designs where the Crown was flanked by an ornament (Fig.12).

- Round design (30mm) with an indication of the type of tax. This type was only used for ‘Native Tax’ purposes in the period circa 1919 (Fig.13).

- Round design (27mm) with only the value indicated. This type of design was used over the period 1919 to 1927 mainly on Certificates for the Publication of Banns (Fig.14).

- Round design (30mm) with the Crown above the shield. The following values have been observed printed in black, red or green colours: 6d, 1/-, 2/-, 2/6, 4/-, 5/-, £1. This type of design was used on a variety of documents: Marriage Certificates, Birth Certificates, Tourist Passports, Certificates of Adoption, Permits and Monthly Fee Labels (Native Urban Areas Act, 1923) (Figs.15 and 16).

- Round design (26mm) with the Crown above the shield. The following values have been observed printed in black, red or green colours: 6d, 1/-, 2/-, 2/6, 4/-, 5/-, £1. This type of design was used on a variety of documents: Marriage Certificates, Birth Certificates, Tourist Passports, Certificates of Adoption, Permits and Monthly Fee Labels (Native Urban Areas Act, 1923) (Figs.15 and 16).
Province indicated. This is an unique type of design with the province indicated. Only one document with ‘TRANSVAAL’ indicated has been observed used on a Native Labour Passport (Fig.17).

- Oval design (17mm x 27mm) with the value indicated. Circa 1919 - 1922. This type has only been observed used on Death Certificates. (Fig.18).

Collectors of Union revenue stamps are encouraged to include these embossed and imprinted revenue stamps in their collections and also to report new findings. Embossed revenue stamps of the Union of South Africa is still a virgin field and it will be worthwhile for collectors to explore this aspect of revenue stamp collecting.

The impact of industrialisation in the late 1880s arising from the discovery of diamonds and gold in the interior of South Africa was far-reaching and spawned the need for the interior to be linked by rail to coastal ports. The subsequent development of a railway network was to have a significant influence on the people of the region, its economy, social circumstance, the growth and transformation of settlements, harbours, and agricultural regions. This development of the railways within the southern African colonies and states presented an opportunity to provide a faster and more efficient postal communication service for the public and government administrations both locally and beyond. For several decades, people in Natal were subject to slow postal services with local mail being transported regularly, at weekly or bi-weekly time intervals, by horse or mule carts or, in more remote areas, by native runners. Overseas mail took nearly three weeks or sometimes longer to reach its destination, being taken by steamships arriving at South African ports initially at two-week intervals and later at weekly intervals. For many years the Colony had unsuccessfully sought a faster mail route to Cape Town and Europe, as the mail ships would leave Port Natal sailing via Cape Town to England with stops at several intermediate ports on route.

The Natal railway to Harrismith, Orange Free State.

In January 1876, the Natal Government Railways (NGR) although seriously hampered by labour shortages, commenced construction of the railway from Durban to Pietermaritzburg, which was eventually completed on 2 December 1880. The efforts of the Natal government now concentrated on the extension of the line via Ladysmith in the hope of opening trade routes to the Transvaal and Orange Free State. The rail line opened for traffic to Ladysmith on 21 June 1886.

In May 1889 the Natal Colonial Government offered to build, equip, and work a railway line from Van Reenen’s Pass to Harrismith. The Free State Volksraad accepted the offer and in February 1890 an agreement was reached. The convention granted Natal the sole right to build and work the railway line between Van Reenen and Harrismith, which was to be completed by 7 November 1892, three years after the first sod had been turned by the Natal Governor Sir Charles Mitchell on 7 November 1889 at a place 2.5 km outside Ladysmith. A salute of 19 salvos was fired on this prestigious occasion (Fig.1). During the next seven days the dignitaries from the Free State were lavishly feted at official functions; at a dinner in Pietermaritzburg on the 8th, in Durban on the 11th, and Verulam on 13th November.

There was a shortage of labourers for both railway construction and maintenance work, particularly African labourers, leaving the Colony with the only option to employ more and more Indian indentured labourers. By the 1890s the NGR was the largest employer of both Indians and Africans in Natal. The rail section to Van Reenen’s Pass (Fig.2) presented particular engineering problems requiring three reversing stations (Heydenych H & B Martin, 1992). The line was opened for passenger traffic on 19 November 1891 and finally to Harrismith by 13 July 1892 (Figs.3 & 4).

A railway through the Orange Free State to the Transvaal

The Cape Colonial Government had already entered into contract with the Free State Government for the construction of the railway from the Orange River (Noval’s Pont) to Bloemfontein. The line was opened on 17 - 18 December 1890 at an extravagant three-day Official Opening ceremony. A programme of festivities commencing on 17 December with the arrival of special trains, was hosted by the President of the Free State. The ceremony was attended by the High Commissioner (Cape Colony), Governor of Natal, and State President of the South African Republic who were all dined at a lavish official luncheon.
In addition to other day and evening entertainments, including a ball, a polo scratch event was held at the race course and included a ‘Menagerie Race’ where any small animals except dogs (unless they were harnessed to a cart and carrying passengers) participated. This race was a handicap at which ‘a frog or tortoise will have as good a chance to win as an ostrich. Animals suitable would include goats, pigs, calves, sheep, cats, rabbits, fowls, ducks, geese, turkeys, frogs, tortoises, monkeys; but these must be driven’ (i.e. any competitor in front of his animal or bird at any time during the race would be disqualified).

Extension of the railway north from Bloemfontein

The railway line was extended north of Bloemfontein, first to Kroonstad and then over the Vaal River to Vereeniging in the Transvaal. On 23 May 1892 a train from the south crossed over into the Transvaal and arrived at Vereeniging. The line between the Vaal River and Elandsfontein (Germiston) was later opened for traffic (15 September 1892), a permanent bridge replacing the temporary bridge over the Vaal River on 5 November 1892. The final rail section from Pretoria to Elandsfontein was officially opened on 1 January 1893. Thus a rail link was established from the capital of the Transvaal and Witwatersrand gold fields to Cape Town (De Jong et al. 1988).

Natal mail routed ‘Via Bloemfontein’

With rail links from Durban to Harrismith and from Cape Town north to the Transvaal through the Free State now being a reality, an overland mail route became possible and was soon established. In his annual report for the year ending February 1893 the Postmaster General stated “I was enabled to take measures for direct mails between Bloemfontein and Durban (Natal) three times a week; and this was a great help, not only for the Free State but also for Natal and Cape Colony. The Free State receives a certain amount for every foreign letter via Bloemfontein and because letters can be sent along this route three full days after the departure of the mail steamer from Durban, the revenue from this source will be of considerable importance in the course of time” (Stroud 1993).

Given that no postal agreement existed between Orange Free State and Natal at that time, the amount received by the Free State was deemed a ‘Transit Fee’ of 2d on ordinary mail (Fig.5), 4d on registered mail (Fig.6), and 1d on a postcard (Stroud 1993). Natal had become a member of the UPU on 1 July 1892 and the postage rate for ordinary letters addressed to overseas UPU countries was 2½d per half ounce.

The overland Natal mails destined for overseas or Cape Colony were taken by a Natal Government Railways mail train to Harrismith; this route was opened for traffic in September 1892 (Figs.5, 6 & 7). From Harrismith the mail was taken three times a week either by horse or mail-cart to Winburg Station, to be loaded onto a Cape Government Railways train travelling to Bloemfontein and onto Cape Town. At Cape Town the overseas mail was transferred and loaded onto a Union Line or Castle Line mail steamer sailing to England.

An 1893 cover (Fig.7) addressed to Port Elizabeth and sent at the 6d postage rate that is, double the Natal - Cape postage of 2d per half ounce plus the 2d Transit Fee payable to the Free State is of particular interest. It is back stamped by a ‘MIDLAND DOWN’ travelling post office canceller on September 29 [1893] confirming that it was being transported on the railway system.

On reaching Noupoort it was routed by rail to Port Elizabeth. This cover is the only recorded philatelic item to the Cape Colony sent during this time via

In the 1993 article in The Orange Free State Bulletin written by Richard Stroud, only a single cover addressed to England was recorded and illustrated, that had been routed via Harrismith and Bloomfontein. The three covers illustrated in this article represent new finds and bring the total number now recorded to four.

Extension of the Natal railway to Charlestown

Natal, Cape Colony and Free State wanted to secure trade with the Witwatersrand and pursued this objective with the South African Republic. However the priority for the Republic was to construct a rail link to Delagoa Bay in Mozambique, which would therefore be outside of British influence. By 1888 – 89 Natal was absolutely committed to a railway connection with the Transvaal by conceptualising and initiating a plan for an extension of the line from Ladysmith via Newcastle to the gold fields of the Witwatersrand. However it was clear that President Kruger would not agree to this extension at that time. Nevertheless Natal continued with the construction of the rail line to Newcastle which was opened for traffic on 15 May 1890. A site three kilometres from the Transvaal border was then selected for the terminus. This place was named Charlestown after the governor Sir Charles Mitchell (Fig.8). The challenge the NGR faced was to build the railway through difficult steep mountainous terrain to Lang’s Nek and over the Drakensberg escarpment. Given the steepness of the topography two reversing stations had to be provided.

The official opening of the railway to Charlestown took place on 7 April 1891 at a function attended by President Kruger as guest of honour. Sir Charles Mitchell performed the opening ceremony (Fig.9). President Kruger and his entourage were taken by rail to Pietermaritzburg and Durban so that they could view the achievements of the Natal railways. They were shown through the NGR workshops, transported by train to the harbour and coal shed, then conducted over the harbour works, taken by a yacht across the bay before having dinner and being entertained by a fireworks display. Following a survey it was decided to build a tunnel at Lang’s Nek which would shorten the length of the line by five kilometres and reduce the very steep incline. It was a great engineering feat for the NGR and was opened on 14 October 1891. With the railway completed from Pretoria to Delagoa Bay on 1 November 1895 (De Jong 1988), attention turned to the South-Eastern Line to Volksrust. Although the Transvaal Government eventually decided to go ahead with the South-Eastern Line it was clearly a great engineering feat for the NGR. It reduced the very steep incline. It was a great engineering feat for the NGR and was opened on 14 October 1891.

On 1 June 1895 the overland mail route was changed; the Natal mails were forwarded daily by rail to Standerton, then by coach to Johannesburg, and from there by rail to the Cape Colony. This change of mail route allowed for the course of post to be more frequent and shortened by 12 hours in each direction (Stroud 1993 quoting the 1895 Cape Postmaster General Report). A through rail-road-rail route had therefore been established from November 1895. With the completion of the final section of the railway, the South-Eastern Line was opened for traffic on 2 January 1896 (De Jong et al 1988).

and one postcard that were sent on the ‘Johannesburg to Bloemfontein’ mail route. These together with the cover illustrated in Fig.11 and a second cover dated 16 MY 96 taken by the Tartar make up the eight recorded philatelic items that have been found thus far.

Following further negotiations with the Transvaal, Free State and Cape Colony postal authorities all the Natal – Europe mail correspondence was routed overland by rail through the Transvaal and OFS to Cape Town at no additional postage costs (Fig.12). This became possible from November 1895 because the Free State, although not a member of the UPU agreed to comply with the same conditions as if it were such a member (note that Natal, Transvaal, and Cape Colony had become members of the UPU on 1 July 1892, 1 January 1893, and 1 January 1895, respectively. The Free State joined later on 1 January 1898). This arrangement allowed Natal to terminate its ocean mail contracts with the Castle Mail Packets and Union Steam Ship Co. From 1 August 1896 the outward English mail was forwarded overland to Cape Town and thence by the Cape Colony ocean service to England (Stroud 1993).

Recently, I was invited by the University of the Third Age or U3A, that is to say the branch here in George, to deliver a lecture on the general topic of ‘Philately’. I was happy to accept the invitation, but with the proviso that I should introduce myself, rather than leave it to the Chairman of the Society. To this he readily agreed and left me virtually to my own devices as regards the content of my talk. Obviously, with the majority of the anticipated audience being neither knowledgeable nor even interested in the finer points of the hobby, I realised that I would need to concentrate on the stories ‘behind the stamps’, much as I did in a series of articles that I contributed to The SA Philatelist over a period of ten years or so starting in June 2004.

I commenced my talk, which I gave the title: Philately – an Investment in Life, by explaining just what I meant by that description. Firstly, I emphasised that I wasn’t referring to a financial ‘investment’ but rather to the adoption of a hobby which, in my own case, has already ruled out the threat of boredom in the first twenty-two years of my retirement. I then went on to explain how the word ‘philately’ had been adapted from the Greek and meant, literally, the love of the avoidance of paying taxes. This certainly grabbed the attention of my audience! They may, possibly, have been a little disappointed when they learnt that this referred to the requirement that, prior to 1840, it was the receivers of mail rather than the senders thereof who were required to pay the cost of postage and that this was likened, disparagingly, to a tax.

I then projected my first image, that of a ‘Penny Black’ on cover, a stamp which, it transpired, most of my audience had heard about but never seen ‘in the flesh’ as it were (Fig.1). From there I went on to show South Africa’s contribution to the early days of pre-paid post in the form of a 4d blue triangular of 1853 on a cover from Alice to Fort Beaufort (Fig.2). Then, quite deliberately, I transferred my attention to India where I showed an entire page from my collection, one devoted to that country and explained how I had arranged my collection of Issuing Authorities of the World, in this case from the days of the honourable East India Company until the emancipation of the Republic of India.

This gave me the excuse to talk about the ‘Scinde Dawk’, an embossed issue that was the first postage stamp in Asia and was in use from July 1852 until October 1854 (Fig.3). It has been said that in 1843, Sir Charles Napier (1782-1853), Commander-in-Chief of the British forces, recaptured Scinde, or Sindh as it is pronounced and sometimes spelt, and cabled a telegram to their lordships in London bearing the single word - PECCAVI. Not having an Italian-speaking audience, I was obliged to explain that the word peccavi came from the Latin and would translate as ‘I have sinned’. Quite an outrageous pun!

Also on the same page was an issue of 1948 portraying Mahatma Gandhi (1869-1948) and celebrating the first anniversary of India’s status as a dominion, albeit still within the British Commonwealth (Fig.4). This gave me the opportunity to introduce thematic or topical philately of which The Life of Gandhi is a popular example and is a branch of the hobby in which the theme of the collection is more important, not surprisingly, than the country of origin or the use to which the stamps in the collection might have been put.

I then projected my first image, that of a ‘Penny Black’ on cover, a stamp which, in which I was born (Fig.5). Likewise, my national service in the Royal Air Force was acknowledged by a 1990 GB issue marking the fiftieth anniversary of the Battle of Britain (Fig.6), while the seven years that I spent as a surveyor on an open-cast mine were illustrated with one of the 1968 Independence issues of Swaziland, depicting the actual iron ore mine where I was working (Fig.7).

A circular gold-coloured local ‘stamp’ of 1968 from the Scottish island of Davaar (Fig.8) celebrated the gold medal that I received at the National Exhibition that was held in Benoni in 1994. Among the seventeen other stamps included in this introductory page were an 1894 issue from the Orange Free State, the home province of my wife (Fig.9), a GB commemorative of 1964 celebrating Shakespeare's (and my own) connection with the stage (Fig.10) and a 1938 issue of Switzerland showing Herman Pestalozzi, an 18th Century educationalist, whose statue included, at his feet, two small children who were required, for the sake of this thematic exhibit, to stand proxy for my own children (Fig.11).

Postage stamps may be small, insignificant pieces of paper, but the story they tell if one takes the trouble to dig deeper ‘behind the stamp’, opens a kaleidoscope of fascinating details – even on a personal level. Article to be continued in next issue.

Stamp collecting and philately are long lived and well established activities which, while extremely popular in the past, have received less interest in recent years. Despite this, the hobby will continue as we are by nature collectors at heart and especially in our more mature years seek activities to fill our time. Thus, there will always be a group in society interested in stamps and acquiring philatelic material.

Societies which run active exchange packet programmes are well placed to serve this group of collectors many of whom pursue their stamp collecting hobby outside formally organised societies. The challenge is to find innovative ways of encouraging these collectors to become part of organised philately and collecting. Exchange Sections of existing societies present such an opportunity.

Many societies have facilitated the exchange of material between members through an active exchange section where members place and price their unwanted and duplicate material in booklets, which are then circulated to all interested members. Pretoria Philatelic Society records show that the society has had an active Exchange Section going back over 90 years having commenced in at least 1928 and possibly earlier. The administration of the section was done manually up until the late 1980s when a Visual Basic computer programme running on a 286 processor was introduced and was used until 2017, when it was decided to develop a replacement programme as technological changes and the inability to access the source code made upgrading and maintenance of the programme challenging.

After considering possible options it was decided that the programme should be accessible from the Internet and written in the open source php language to obviate the problems experienced when trying to upgrade the earlier programme. Being Web based the programme would be universally accessible to the Exchange Sections administrators, Circuit/Route managers and members contributing books for circulation. It would also remove the necessity and risks associated with the programme and records being on a stand-alone dedicated or member owned computer. It also removed the risks associated with only one member really being au fait with the programme. Like all Web based programmes new risks are introduced of which hacking is probably the greatest.

Running a Society exchange programme comes with risks to both the society and the contributors. Risks to the contributor, centre largely around the loss of material or the fraudulent substitution of material. Contributors are largely aware of these risks and take steps to mitigate them. They are also exposed to the risk of not being paid for the material sold from their exchange books. Non-payment will largely result from a society not fully evaluating and anticipating the risks inherent in their Exchange Section’s administration procedures. These centre on record keeping and banking. The original Pretoria Society programme established reliable record keeping and reporting procedures which have been incorporated into the new programme. The programme has also sought to include new features to communicate information and reports to contributors.

As the programme is Web based it can be accessed by a wider range of authorised members of the Society which reduces the risk of the collapse of the Exchange Section and loss of records, due to the failure of a stand-alone machine-based programme, or the incapacitation of its operator. The Pretoria Society programme also addresses the critical need to always be able to determine the Society’s liability to its contributors for sales from their books and to ensure that sufficient funds are immediately available to meet these liabilities. It goes without saying that it is also desirable that the exchange section operates through a separate Society bank account with an adequate number of signatories.

The programme is centred around the database where all the data is stored and accessed through a series of modules with specific functions to make using it as intuitive as possible. These modules are termed Contributors, Books, Packs (Packets), Circuits (Routes), Sales, Payouts, Reports and Notes all of which are self-explanatory and will be familiar to administrators in other societies running an Exchange Packet service for their members. The database is automatically backed up each week with a copy being sent to both the Exchange Superintendent and/or his/her assistant for safekeeping off site.

- The Contributors module’s function is to capture and edit the personal information of members contributing books for circulation. Also, in this module, the current status of the sales from each book contributed by a member can be displayed either in summary or by individual circuit. Individual status reports can be viewed, downloaded for printing or e-mailed directly to single or multiple contributors simultaneously.

- The Books module’s function is to assign a unique number to each book received, capture the contributor and the book value. All books in circulation are displayed in this module which also provides the ability to view the sales from individual books and to edit incorrect sales data as identified or when reconciling sales prior to contributors’ being paid out for books being returned to them.

- The Packs module’s function is to create new packs and assign books to packets for circulation.

The programme provides for three types of Packs, default, payout and Z-Packs. The Pretoria Society uses numerically numbered default packets for general circulation, Z prefixed numerically numbered default packets for initial book circulation to Society Office Bearers and X prefixed numerically numbered packets to accumulate books ready for return to contributors and then to initiate the calculation of the proceeds of sales from their books. Within this module there is the ability to add books to a packet, transfer books between packets and to withdraw the books in a packet for payout.

- The Circuits module’s function is to create Circuit or Route identifiers.

- The Sales module’s function is to create a sales form for a specific packet and circuit and to capture the sales in the packet’s books into the database.

- The Payouts module’s function is to calculate the proceeds of sales by contributor for all books withdrawn or transferred into a designated payout X Pack. Confirming the payout produces Payout Letters for each contributor whose books are in the X packet, summarising their sales by book and the commission payable. These letters can either be viewed, downloaded for printing or e-mailed directly to the contributor. Activating a payout archives all the books in that Payout packet and removes them from the current list of books. Archived books can be viewed by activating the Archive function in each module.

- The Reports module’s function is largely for administrative purposes. A Members’ Summary Report summarises by contributor the number of his/her books currently in circulation and the Society’s liability to the contributor for sales from their books. This is an important document for use in the audit process as well as ensuring that the Society is cognisant of its liability at any time. Multiple Contributors Statements and Receipt Letters for new books received can also be produced for downloading or direct e-mailing in this module.

- The Notes module’s function is to record activities and problems experienced to be able to share these between users of the programme.

The Pretoria Society’s Exchange Section continuously tested the programme as it was being developed using live data and once satisfied that the programme was working as planned, has now made three live payout runs all of which have proved successful and problem free. Like all programmes, improvements and upgrades in functionality will inevitably be needed and will be undertaken from time to time as shortcomings are identified through usage. The successful completion of the programme would not have been possible without the advice of John Barry and the valuable input and efforts of Gregg Berry, both of whose contributions are gratefully acknowledged.

The programme, while developed specifically for the Pretoria Society, is flexible enough to accommodate the procedures used by other societies, which should they be interested in computerising the administration of their exchange sections, are invited to contact Steve Marsh (swamp@mweb.co.za) or John Barry (john.barry.rsa@gmail.com) for further information.

TRANSKEI - an introduction
by the TBVC Study Group

The TBVC (The independent states of Transkei, Bophuthatswana, Venda and Ciskei) Study Group first started meeting in early 2009 under the leadership of the late Ds/Rev Cassie Carstens. Meetings were held monthly “on the stoep” at the Pretoria Stamp Fair and mini-auction. Initial meetings focussed on the commemorative stamps with studies directed towards the thematic aspects of these issues. The accumulation of material for an archive commenced. The scope of the study was widened to include amongst others, commemorative postmarks, postal stationery, maxi cards, miniature sheets and private issues as these became available. On completion of this preliminary survey and study more in-depth research commenced. This is directed at the graphic designs, the printing, perforating and cancelling processes and how these developed at the Government Printers to effectively meet the requirements of the Post Office. To fully understand how these developments took place the research on the issues will be in date chronological order irrespective of the independent state. A special TBVC Study Group meeting will be held at the forthcoming National Exhibition, Stampshow 2018, to present some of the initial results of the studies and to encourage greater interest and research co-operation amongst collectors of this neglected area of South African stamp collecting and philately.

In this article we wish to highlight, in a synopsis form, the exciting philatelic findings of our research as we start the in-depth philatelic study of the independent states commencing with the Transkei inauguration issue. We gratefully acknowledge the assistance of retired government printer’s personnel and the kind access to the South African Post Office museum to study, amongst others, the graphic and approved printer’s sheets as we attempt to find answers to our research findings. The TBVC study group members are excited with our new in-depth research and appreciate how the unearthing of answers for the independent states applies equally to the stamp issues of South Africa and South West Africa, e.g. what is the reason for the thicker font of the ‘5c’ in some of the third definitive protea series stamps? The answer is found in the study of the 15c Transkei inauguration stamp elucidated in this article. Moreover the availability of the independent state stamp issues makes the study of these items very possible and without exorbitant cost. The graphic development from original item to approved water colour essay to final stamp is illustrated for the four stamps of the inauguration issue. The 4c stamp is used as an example to show the full printer’s proof sheet and how to identify the four different panes by plating identification features. While all four stamp values have been studied in this fashion and other research findings documented, these have been precluded by space in this article but can be available in electronic format in the future.

Portrait facing forward to his left. The English translation of ukumkani is king and an inappropriate title for the status of Kaiser Matanzima as Paramount Chief. The depicted imperforate proof printer’s sheet demonstrates the four panes in the next to each other format. The correct alignment of the five different printing colour plates is indicated by the perfect printed alignment of the colour bars seen on the top of the printer’s sheet as well as the crossed circles at either side. The printers proof was approved and signed by EB Nel on behalf of INTERSAPA manager dated 31 August 1976 leaving the government printers just over one month for printing and delivery. A second on site final approval was required before the printing run commenced.

10c stamp: Transkei mace and flag

The Parliamentary Mace:
The top of the mace contains nine ivory rings, symbolic of the nine regional chiefs, clasped together by a gold ring signifying the bringing together of the people in a traditional tribal independent government. The rings rest on a basket (similar to that used for reaping crops) made of stinkwood. The basket, particular to Transkei and used to store grain. It is supported by seven maize cobs, carved from white wood, which signifies the fertility of the territory, its abundance and the fertility of the people.

Several solid gold rings fused together to form two bands, one is situated below the base. These are typical of the bands Transkeians wear on their arms and legs.

The inscription IMBUMBA YAMANYAMA (unity is strength) appears below the upper gold ring. There are nine black rings occupying the lower half of the mace each inscribed with one of the nine electoral regions: Dalindyebo, Emboland, Emigrant Tembuland, Fingo, Gcaleka, Maluti, Nyanda, Quakeni and Umzimkulu.

The Flag:
Transkeians designed their own flag in 1963 when the territory was granted self-government by the South African Parliament. The tricolour flag was adopted on 20 May 1966 and officially hoisted for the first time on 31 May 1966. It remained unchanged when Transkei became independent on 26 October 1976. The top red-ochre band is derived from the colour of the soil (“Imbola”) from which the traditional Xhosa huts are built. The middle white band stands for peace and the lower deep green band represents the rolling hills of the countryside and agriculture.

The site of a military post for British Colonial Forces, the town was formally laid out and proclaimed a municipality which was to endure for nearly a further 100 years before Umtata achieved city status.

The Artist/Graphic Designer:
- BARRETT, Arthur Howard (Barry) (1916 - 2000)

Barry was born on 2 December 1916 at Leytonstone, London - son of a brushware salesman with three brothers and a sister. He died on 3 July 2000. AH Barrett of Osspoed, Bronkhorstspruit, was designated Beeld’s 1989 Stamp Designer of the Year for his South West African series on Namib Desert Sand Dunes. He received the World Stamps floating trophy plus a cash prize of R500 from Stephan Welz, well known in the world of art. Barrett had won this coveted prize then for the fifth time in ten years, which really establishes him to be the country’s finest stamp designer, being responsible for 444 stamps. Barrett was quite an adventurer who travelled the length of Africa by car. He lived and worked in Johannesburg and the countryside east of Bronkhorstspruit during his most productive years, i.e. circa 1970 to 1990.

The evolution of the 10c stamp

15c stamp: Paramount Chief (uKumkani) Kaiser D. Matanzima

Head portrait facing forward to his right.

The Transkei Coat of Arms:

The shield depicts: top left, maize - the main staple food; top right, a wheel - a symbol for industry and bottom, a bull's head - symbol for animal husbandry as well as being a symbol of wealth. The crest is made up of maize and a maize basket, another symbol for the richness of the country. The supporters are two leopards, the royal symbol of the people. The base symbolises the many green hills of Transkei. The brown and white are traditional colours used by the people of Transkei for painting the body. The motto is IMBUMBA YAMANYAMA, translated meaning unity is strength.

The micro details of the 20c stamp will appear in future publication - sadly these four pages have not done full justice to the incredible amount of research that the TVBC Stamp Study group have compiled. Contact them via Dr Heinz Wirz... there is so much to share with this interesting aspect of collecting. Heinz Wirz <wirz@global.co.za> 📜
